TRIMMER'S ACCIDENT.

Runs Into the Fence and is Painfully Injured—Leaves for Louisville Today.

Oscar Trimmer met with quite an accident on the New Boston race track Saturday evening. He was out training and while going at a very rapid rate the wheel struck a little knob and before he could right it the bicycle ran into the fence. He was pretty badly bruised up, his arm and leg being painfully cut. The wheel was bent and broken up in bad shape. Notwithstanding his accident Trimmer left for Louisville today to go into training on the track there for the races next Thursday. He will ride in four races on that day and hopes to come out well in the lead on the home finish.

The Soul and Body of Dr. Buchanan Were Separated.

The Electrocution of the Famous New York Wife Murderer Quickest on Record.

The Wife of the Condemned on Her Knees Begged Gov. Morton to Save Her Husband's Life—One of the Famous Cases of the Decade—Story of the Villianous Crime and Cold Blooded Criminal.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

SING SING, July 1.—Early this morning Warden Sage received the opinion of the attorney-general to to the effect that the warden was not justified in delaying the execution of Dr. Buchanan. He did not like the negative nature of the opinion, but later received a telegram from the attorney-general saying "I do not think the last proceedings act as a stay." This Warden Sage regarded as a proper warrant to proceed with the execution.

Mrs. Buchanan at 6 o'clock went on her knees to Governor Morton, asking a commutation to life imprisonment. The governor was deeply affected, but felt obliged to deny the request. Buchanan was very nervous and asked for the news from the attorney-general before it had been received.

Mrs. Buchanan arrived at 10 a. m., but was denied the privilege of seeing her husband, as the preparations were then in progress for his death. At 11.14 the witnesses were called to the death chamber. In a closed box was the convict who upon a given signal was to turn the switch. Buchanan took his seat without a word. In thirty seconds he was strapped, and in forty seconds he was pronounced dead. A voltage of 1,740 was kept on for four seconds, and then reduced to forty volts and kept on thirty seconds longer. It was the quickest electrical execution yet made.

Buchanan was but 33 years old. He became dissolute in New York and his wife left him. In 1890 he got a divorce. Three weeks afterward he married a woman much older than himself, the keeper of a house of ill repute, who made a will bequeathing him $40,000. They soon quarreled and she died suddenly. He then re-married his first wife secretly. A suspicion arising the body of the wife was exhumed and examined, and his trial, conviction and sentence of death followed. Twice Governor Morton has granted a short respite.

OUTLOOK GOOD

A party of "brick" men, consisting of L. C. Turley, of the Kentucky Fire Brick Co.; Dudley B. Hutchins, of the South Webster Fire Brick Co.; Sam Adams, of the Portsmouth Fire Brick Co.; C. W. Turner, of the Scioto Brick Co., of Sciotoville; Mr. Davis, of the Oak Hill company; and Mr. Casta, of the Star Brick Co., of Sciotoville, were in Birmingham looking out for contracts. The party made the trip back together, arriving in the city yesterday. Needless to say they had a good time. Each of the brick men were successful in securing a contract of some kind or other, and each was correspondingly happy. Mr. Turley says the outlook for the brick industry in this section was never better than it is right now.

Going Back.

Col. Frank White has just finished up three pretty little cottages on Offnere streets and now offers them for sale very cheap. THE LIGHTNING DANCED

Residents for squares around witnessed a remarkable electrical display at the courthouse during the storm last evening. The first evidence of the approach of the exhibition was three loud toots sounding very much as if they eminated from an immense horn. A big ball of fire shot from the dome of the building and flew across the sky. Simultaneously the numerous electrical bells in the courthouse commenced to ring and large balls of fire entered the building and commenced to chase each other through the corridors and offices. Henson Scott, the janitor, who was sitting in the hallway was stunned. He laid unconscious for several minutes and says that when he came to his first thought was that he was dead. He ran out of the building when he encountered the attaches of the sheriff's office and jail coming out on the double quick.

A big wooden support on which the wires concentrated was torn from the top of the building and hurled to the ground. The live wires flopped all over the yard making a pretty appearance but warning the spectators to keep their distance. The damage was limited to that already mentioned and the disarrangement of the lighting and electric call system of the building.

THE GILT EDGE CLUB

Open House Yesterday Enjoyed by Many Visitors—End of a Month's Delightful Outing.

Yesterday was open day at the camp of the Gilt Edge Outing Club and a number of visitors were royally entertained. A feature of the big dinner was 150 pounds of fish, which with the trimmings, made an elegant spread. Among the visitors were Squire Daniel Shakespere and wife, Henry Bassler and daughters, Frank Swartz and family, Elizabeth Zehner, Mary Bassler, Nick Rhinehart, Charles Miller and others.

They have had one of the finest equipped camps in the vicinity and have enjoyed camp life to the fullest extent. They will give a chicken and fish outing to their friends soon and have issued a special invitation to the newspaper men.

AROUND THE HOTELS.

M. L. Sternberger, the Jackson capitalist and coal mine operator, was at the Biggs today. Mr. Sternberger came down on business connected with the new electric street car line to be built at Jackson. The bonds have already been negotiated for, and work will be begun on the line this week. The road will be eighteen miles long, connecting Jackson with McArthur Junction. It will be completed by the first of November.

J. T. Snyder, J. H. Nagle, C. M. Flapa and W. S. Powell. of the Columbus opera house orchestra, were at the Biggs yesterday, en route to Glen Springs, Ky., where they will dispense sweet music during the summer.

Will C. Culkins, now special correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette,, is at the Biggs. He is making quite a mark in journalism in the metropolis. Will has some very near and dear friends in this city.

OUT OF THE GROCERY BUSINESS.

Robt. Dodge Will Close Up Wednesday Night—Will Conduct a Boarding House.

Robt. Dodge, the West Second street grocer, will retire permanently from the grocery business next Wednesday night. He will hereafter conduct a boarding house on West Sixth street near Grimes avenue. The new house, which Mr. Dodge has rented for his boarding place will not be ready for occupancy before the middle of the month. In the meantime the retired grocer will spend the hot days with old friends about Harrisonville. Mr. Dodge has been in the grocery business for eight years, and in that time has won many friends. He has great faith in the future of the triumph of Populist rule, and when the times are ripe will launch forth his Populist newspaper.

Will Keep Open Wednesday.

The stores that have been closing Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings will keep open Wednesday evening of this week on account of the fact that they will be closed Thursday, the Fourth.

COL. BRENT AND THE U. C. T.

The Order Is Flourishing and Shows An Increase in Membership of Forty-Eight Per Cent. Over Last Year.

Col. William Brent has just returned from a meeting of the supreme council of the U. C. T. at Columbus. The order is now in a more prosperous condition than ever before in its history. Last year has shown a net gain in membership of forty-eight per cent., after deducting all deaths, etc. Several lodges which have fallen into a state of innocuous disquietude within the last few years have made application for a reinstatement. The meeting of the supreme council at Columbus last week was attended by members of the order from nearly every part of the union. Col. Brent is showing great executive ability in his new position as grand counsellor of the order. He will go to Gallipolis in a few days to install a new lodge.

HERMAN HUELS BACK

Herman Huels, who has been gone several weeks on a bicycle trip through the northern part of the state, returned home Sunday evening. He was met at Waverly by Oscar Long, Charles Wertz, Matt Thompson, Geo. Freund, Will Zottman, Ceran Cockerill, Vernon Davidson and Charles Doerr, of the Cycling club. Coming down the boys were caught in the rain and forced to take to the railroad tracks. They came down on the railroad riding trestles and all, from Wakefield. Huels has been in Toledo and Detroit and intermediate points during his absence.

The Singer a Popular Machine.

John Keer, a special agent of the Singer Sewing Machine company, is in the city today looking after the shoe manufacturers' trade. Nearly all the factories in the city are using machines made by the Singer company. The business of the merchant that does not advertise travels around in a narrow circle, halting at every puff of the wind of adversity. On the other hand, the business of the man that uses Printer's Ink goes straight ahead, riding serenely over all obstacles, gathering strength as it advances.
—The National Advertiser.

Notice.

Any person having bills against the TIMES will please present them at once as we desire to close up all old accounts and begin anew for the next six months. We desire to thank our patrons for the past six months business, and for the promptness with which they have made settlements. There is but one more thing we would desire, and that is a continuance of the patronage, on a 30 day basis. We hope to be able in the future to give you all an improved service in all departments of our business.

AN advertiser reaches at least one-third more homes by advertising in the Daily TIMES than he does in any other paper.

THE Morning Tribune will hereafter be run on a 16 to 1 basis—16 readers of this paper to 1 of any other.—Tribune.

It is evident that the above is a typographical error. It should have been "16 creditors of this paper to 1 of any other."

THE glorious rains of the past few days will give a bright green tinge to all nature, making the farmers correspondingly happy. We all rejoice with them, as we realize they are the salt of the earth. Good crops is the backbone of a country's prosperity.

WE haven't been shown the bond signed, sealed and delivered by Bro. Hard pledging his vote for the Huskell bill, but we are reliably informed that his promise is out. There is an old saying, "burnt children shun the fire." What will Bro. Hard do to convince the doubting ones there is no fire? It looks like a case of the boy and the wolf.

THE Wood county commissioners were found guilty of misconduct in office. They were all Republicans. This is nothing strange. Dishonest politicians in a county are always most numerous in the majority party, for all office seekers drift to that party. Dishonest men are found in all parties, and the extent to which fraud is committed in a community depends largely on the uniformity with which a majority is maintained. It flourishes best where party and not men control the votes—where we sacrifice our citizenship to our party.

SUNDAY'S Tribune had four and one half columns of set matter, and two-thirds of a column was in reference to the ball game between Cincinnati and Zanesville, which was copied from the Cincinnati Post. If you clip out what the Tribune steals from the Blade, TIMES and Post their set matter would not average one column a day. Yet this puny, historical, newsless sheet has the cheek to put out such stuff as the following:

The Morning Tribune will recognize no competitor as an advertising medium, as indeed it does not now in the matter of news. In every department the work will be in charge of competent and experienced people, and the wishes of our patrons will be constantly borne in mind and followed as far as practicable.

The writer of this clipping is surely a fit candidate for an asylum, or else he is a great humorist and is wasting his time on the Tribune.

Short Talks on Advertising.

[Copyrighted by Charles Austin Bates.]

No man has reached the acme of business success. Heights that we do not dream of will be attained by twentieth century merchants. I am one one of those who believe that there is no limit to the possibilities of human achievement.

This is the frame of mind one gets into after looking at such stores as Wanamaker's, Seigel, Cooper & Co.'s, and "The Fair," in Chicago; Bloomingdale's and Macy's, in New York.

The vast scope of such enterprises, the magnificent system, the quick, alert business wit that it takes to direct them—those give one confidence in future successes. Fifty years ago such establishments were not dreamed of. What will the next fifty years bring forth?

These great stores owe their growth to advertising—to the diffusion of store news, for of what use were the finest store and the biggest bargain if people knew nothing of it?

The science of advertising is in its infancy. It is growing in importance and efficiency every day. It used to be a speculative venture—now it is a scientific certainty.

Speaking of Bloomingdale Bros., I understand that during the first week of a certain "sale" they had recently, they spent $15,000 for advertising, and that the estimated profits on the week's business were $25,000.

Bloomingdale's wasn't always a big store. The brothers are both young men. The business has been built within twenty years. Built by judicious, persistent, truthful advertising, just as any other business may be built.

Advertising is merely telling people in a telling way what you can do for them. If you tell them often enough and in the right way, there is no possibility of failure.

Roanoke, Va., suffered the most disastrous fire in the history of the town Sunday. It commenced in the dry good stores of Noles and Tenant. An entire block of seven houses and three offices were burned.

At Paris, M. Liques, minister of the interior, Sunday opened the international penitentiary congress in the presence of President Faure and other distinguished men. Seven hundred delegates were present. A banquet was given in the evening.

Fred Vanorden, a farmer living near Ft. Jennings, Putnam county, O., recently signed a contract for John Lewis to equip his barn with lightning rods for $5. It is said that the contract turned up at the bank as a note for $500. Vanorden, it is said, hunted up the man and shot him in the abdomen. The wound was not fatal.

A GOOD IDEA.

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., July 1.—H. C. Sands has overcome the great drawback in developing old fields—the necessity of hauling boilers to the well sites and furnishing them with fuel and water when they had been located. Nearly all oil fields are located in mountainous country, where the roads are the poorest, and frequently the greatest item of expense is the hauling of fuel and the keeping of water lines in order.

Mr. Sands proposes to put an electrical motor at each well, and furnish power from a central electrical plant, a single wire being sufficient to take the place of the fuel and costly water line. It is the intention to get a plant in operation here by the 1st of October which will operate 200 wells for a starter.

WEST POINT MEN

To Go to China to Assist in Reorganizing the Army.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Ernest C. Wood, who spent two years at West Point, has just returned from Washington and expects to go to China and assist with other officers in reorganizing the Chinese army on the basis of the western armies. Wood said several more officers and a number of West Point men would go to China for the purpose.

"I went over to see the Chinese ambassador," he said, "and I have now every expectation of going to China, although the methods of Oriental diplomacy are such that I received no positive assurances from the ambassador. But I fully expect to go."

Wood, who is six feet tall, handsome and military in bearing comes from San Francisco.

OFFICIAL AX FALLS.

Secretary Hoke Smith Discharges Five Pension Clerks.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 1.—There is considerable comment over the action of Hoke Smith, secretary of the interior, in discharging five clerks from the United States pension agency in this city. All the discharged clerks are east Tennesseeans, and were selected by Maj. D. A. Carpenter, the pension agent. He declares they are all competent men. This is the first instance where the secretary of the interior ever interfered in the matter of appointments at this agency. The five men discharged were all free silver democrats.

Child's Fatal Fall Down Stairs.

CINCINNATI, July 1. — Agnes Schumacher, a 3-year-old child whose parents live in the Lock street terrace, was playing on the landing on the fifth floor, when it fell down the stairway to the fourth, sustaining terrible injuries. Its skull was fractured, and it received fatal injuries. A physician from the Good Samaritan hospital, was summoned, but his efforts were of no avail, the child dying within an hour after the accident.

Will Be Lynched If Caught.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1.—The people of Algodonas, a small Mexican settlement, are excited over the theft of a big flock of sheep belonging to Don Francisco Archibeque, and the murder of two herders. Pedro Lobato and Maximo Sandoval. The supposed murderer, who driving the sheep southward, is being trailed by a score of determined men, and, if caught, will be lynched without ceremony.

Dr. Buchanan Appeals.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Dr. Buchanan, who is in Sing Sing prison awaiting the death penalty, sent a long telegram to the British ambassador at Washington urging him to interfere in his case. The ambassador has, however, looked into the matter once and declined to take any action.

Drunken Man Killed by Cars.

A BIG SUIT.

Property in St. Louis, Valued at Several Millions,

Including Two-Thirds of Ground Occupied by Shaw's Garden,

Also One-Half of Franklin County at Stake —The Prospective Litigants, the Heirs of Louis Denoy, in Addition Claim Valuable Leases on Broadway.

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—Attorney Harrison K. Bunch has prepared papers and will shortly commence suit to recover title to property valued at several million dollars, including two-thirds of the ground now occupied by Shaw's garden, eight sections of land lying south of the garden and extending through Lower Grove park, and twelve sections of land, comprising nearly one-half of Franklin county. The prospective litigants are the heirs of Louis Denoy, one of the pioneer settlers in the Mississippi valley. They claim a clear title to the property through Spanish and French grants.

In addition to this they claim to have leases to several blocks from Broadway to the river and from Kansas to Krauss street. On this property mills, factories and residences have been built, until it now comprises one of the best parts of south St. Louis. Louis Denoy leased the land from the grantee in 1830 for ninety-nine years at a monthly rental of one dollar, which was paid up to 1850. The heirs claim to have a clear title and are arranging to prove title, pay up the rental and take possession of the property.

As yet they have been unable to learn who owns the ground and executed the leases. Being faded with age the name can not be made out in the papers, and for over forty years there has been no claimant for the rental. Nothing has ever been found in the records to indicate who the owner was. If he died without an heir the Denoy heirs declare the property will revert to them under the lease.

The stockholders and those who have built mills and factories on the land held undisputed possession for years, believe they have a title to it, and will fight every step made by the claimants. There are nine living heirs to the Denoy estate. Very recently the will of Louis Denoy and papers substantiating the Franklin county title have been discovered, and upon these the claims will be fought.

A BAD LOT.

Several Alleged Crooks Come to Grief in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, July 1.—A well dressed, rather good looking woman, 26 years old, who said she was the wife of Wm. Boland, one of the men arrested here last week charged with issuing forged checks on Cincinnati banks, called at police headquarters to see Boland and was locked up. The police claim she is Lizzie Turner, a notorious crook and confederate of the gang of alleged forgers.

Detective Herman Witte and Paying Teller George Koesler, of Cincinnati, are in the city and positively identified Boland as Charles Fischer, who on May 29 last presented a forged check for $1,500, purporting to be drawn by the Cincinnati Coffin Co. at the First national bank of Cincinnati. The other two men, A. M. Dearborn, alias A. M. Royland, and William Hartley, were recognized as accomplices, and Mr. Witte says they are members of a gang of forgers who have been operating in several western cities. Telegrams have been received from the St. Paul, Minn., and Richmond, Va., police, asking that the men be held until officers arrive to look them over. The prisoners will not go to Cincinnati without a requisition. They will be taken before Judge Boler on Tuesday on a writ of habeas corpus.

Bicycle Race.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 1.—The bicycle race between John S. Johnson, Walter C. Sanger and Harry Tyler will take place here Tuesday at the Comstock park, in conjunction with the opening of the Mexican Big Four driving circuit. The race is for $1,000, winner to take all. The contestants will be paced by a quad team.

The Steamer Chenallis in Port.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., July 1.—The steamer Chenallis, which was supposed to be lost on the way down from Sitka to Juneau to this port, arrived Saturday morning, ten days overdue. The lateness of her arrival was caused by bad weather forcing her to seek shelter in nearly every port on the way down.

CHAPTER III.—THE MAN WHO SOLD HIMSELF.

The man-hunter is not confined to the domain of romance. Under the mask of calmness which my adversary wore I could detect the eagerness and passion of pursuit. He had begun the chase perhaps with the cold sense of duty, or under the spur of the large reward upon the heel of his necessity. But once upon the scent a new ardor possessed him. He had pressed on without rest; so much I could read in his lean face. And at that moment when the first flush of triumph was on him, I must win him to dishonor. For I had resolved to bribe him if it were possible; if not, I might do worse. Physically he was not my equal, though large of frame and tall. Supposing that I wrested his spoils from him in that room, and bound and gagged him, Dane might still go free.

"How much money " said I, speaking very slowly, "will you sell those things for?"

He was hastily wrapping them in a great piece of paper.

"You want to bribe me," he rejoined, "No; it won't do."

"The reward," I said, "is less than $10,000. I will give you twenty thousand, cash in hand, this night."

He passed his hand over his forehead as if dazed. I saw that I was appealing to one who loved money, and I took courage

"Quick!" I cried, "decide. Here is the cash. It will make you comfortable for many a day and no one need know. Tell your superior that these evidences were not here Who knows it but you? Who can swear to it?"

"No one. What will you do with them?"

"Burn them in that stove. Is there any metal?"

"The knife."

"I'll take it. No one will suspect me."

"No; I'm safer still. I know what to do with it. Look here. You tempt me. I am pressed for money. Who knows whether the reward will ever be paid? Give me thirty thousand——"

"Twenty-five!"

"No, thirty. I'll take no less. You have as much there. Speak quick before I am an honest man again."

"Done! Here is the money."

I counted it out to him with trembling hands. He put it into his pocket. His face became ghastly pale and his lips quivered.

I had never seen a man sell himself before. The bargaining had been different from what I would have expected; but then the man was clearly exceptional. The quick change in his mental attitude and the readiness of decision on so grave a topic were doubtless part of his nature, and suited to his profession. Yet I would have expected a man with so resolute a face to make a longer fight against corruption.

"Now to destroy them!" I replied. "We must have the hottest fire that the stove can stand."

"But can we wait?"

His voice trembled. The courage had gone out of him; it had fled with his honor as I marked even in that moment of excitement.

"Some one might come," he went on huskily. "Remember I am deeper in it now than you are. Neither if us must be found here with this stuff in sight. Certainly not I. If Dane should come——"

"Of course if only Dane comes we are safe. We must risk the others. It's better than carrying the bundle through the streets."

While speaking I was piling the fuel—of which, fortunately, there was a good supply—into the stove. A moment and the flame leaped up. The draught was magnificent. In ten minutes the stove was ready for Kohnfeld's coat. The blood-stained garment, torn into shreds, smoldered and fought the flame, but vainly. The buttons were of wood, covered with cloth. There was nothing that could not be reduced to ashes. Indeed, I marveled that it had not been destroyed long before. But blood guiltiness muddles the wits.

The shoe with its blood stain was worse fuel than the coat, but by the time it reached the fire there was such a heat as no leather could resist. That witness of the crime passed into ashes. There was little else but the bonds. I was about to put them into the fire, but first I noticed the edges which had been deftly cleansed of blood, though not without leaving a trace of the murderer's work.

"Stop!" cried the detective. "We must not burn those. They should be returned to Miss Kohnfeld. They are rightfully hers."

"True; I will attend to that. Or, on second thought, it is better you should do it. That will seem natural; and if you are true to your bargain to me, you will invent a story which will help clear Dane."

"He will not be convicted," was the reply. "I know the evidence. Without my testimony regarding the finding of these things here, he will escape."

"And that testimony you have sold to me?"

He bowed.

"Now for the knife," said I. "Would it not be well to wrench off the handle, which is of wood, and burn it?"

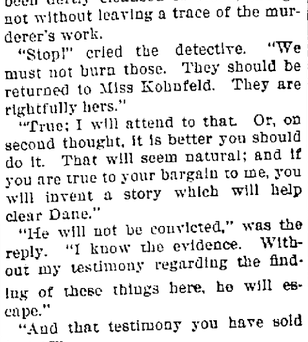

"A good idea."

He drew the knife from under his coat. I split the handle with a blow, and it fell from the blade.

At that moment we heard a sound at the door. The handle was softly turned. Then came the shock of a strong shoulder against the wood, and I heard a low voice.

"The police are upon us!" I whispered.

I gathered up the pieces of the broken haft with a sweep of my hand, and in a flash had fitted them together, to see if I had all. A piece was missing. It would be equal to all the other evidence!

I groped upon the floor. The perspiration fell from my forehead like rain. The room, under the influence of that roaring fire, was like an oven; and excitement blazed in me as hotly.

I heard the door strain, under steady and strong pressure. I turned to my companion. Despite the heat his face was like white paper.

"Is there any way out of here?" I whispered.

"The window!" he replied. "You must stay here, otherwise we shall both be followed and overtaken. Remember I have still the knife blade to dispose of."

I ran with him to the window. He pushed it open cautiously and stepped out. The rough stones gave him footing; he made his way rapidly downward and sidelong.

After one moment's pause at the window to feel the cool air on my face, I hurried to the door, drew the bolt, and put my trembling hand upon the knob. The door was opened by pressure from without. I nearly died of relief at sight of Dane, alone.

"What are you doing here?" he cried. "I knew it was you. Did you not hear me call your name?"

I was too deeply agitated to speak. I could only take his hand, while tears rolled down my cheeks.

"What tomfoolery is this?" he cried, but not unkindly. "Why have you built that fire?"

I was myself by this time.

"Dear old boy," I said, "this night has saved you. I have bought your life and I have burned the evidences of your transgression."

His face paled and then flashed scarlet. He staggered back.

At that moment there was a rap at the door. Before I could stay him, Dane opened it. His action seemed purely mechanical; he was like an image endowed with motion.

A uniformed officer of police entered.

"We've got him!" he cried.

"WE'VE CAUGHT HIM!" HE CRIED.

And in that instant it flashed across me that the fragments of the knife handle were still where they had fallen! Dane was lost unless I could destroy them.

I sprang forward, but the officer advancing, interposed his bulky body without seeming to wish to do so. I dared not force my way by him. I waited, grief-stricken, for the arrival of the men to whom he had addressed his cry of triumph. No one came. There was no sound of men in the corridor.

"So you've got him, eh?" he said. "Where is he?"

The officer waved his hand in the direction of the street.

"He seems to have had a bad fall," he continued. "I should say he must have tried to climb down from a window. I shouldn't be surprised if he was done for."

"I'll be with you in a minute," said Dane.

The officer went out. Dane turned to me.

"Now, in the name of heaven tell me what you've done," he cried.

I stammered out my story.

He seized me by the shoulder and held me face to face with him.

"Wake up!" he exclaimed. "Get your wits together. You've had this thing by the wrong end. I'm a detective. I've been watching this man called Erwin for days and days.

"He was suspected of Kohnfeld's murder, but he was only a name at first. No one knew who he was or where he had gone. I traced him to this place, and got this room because it was next to his. He knew that he was shadowed, though at first he could not tell by whom. I kept him so worried that he could not destroy those evidences of his crime which are now ashes, thanks to you.

"Laboriously I gathered them. The coat I found hidden in the cellar of this building. The shoe was there also though not in the same hiding place. But the bonds I could not find. I decided that he would have to find them for me. Many a night I tracked that man, and one of the best shadows on the headquarters' staff tracked us both."

"We thought he would surely lead us to the bonds," he continued, "but we were always disappointed. At last I found them. They were in the custody of a person with whom Erwin communicated secretly, in the course of his nightly walks. That confederate is now under arrest. I got the bonds and was bringing them back with me this evening when I encountered you in the hall.

"Meanwhile Erwin eluded the shadow and got back to Chrysalis. He came to this room. It was his only chance—to find the accumulated evidence and destroy it. It was mere chance that kept me away so long. I was trying to make connections with the shadow. It is possible that Erwin counted on that.

"You know the rest. Erwin must have been dazed when you appeared. It's lucky for you that he was. But his shrewdness, which is more than mortal, enabled him to take advantage of your error in supposing him to be a detective. He left this room with thirty thousand dollars and the bonds; and if he'd got away heaven only knows when we'd have caught him. You'd have been an accessory after the fact—indeed, you are one now, but I guess we can get you out of it all right. You may have to do a little lying to get your money back; for instance, you might say he found you here and bound, gagged and robbed you. We'll see about that.

"Now, a word more to post you about the case: I was put on it because I knew Kohnfeld. I'd had dealings with the old villain to my cost. Indeed, I owed him a good deal of money—which by the way I shall have to pay mighty soon out of my share of the reward.

"Erwin, by the way, is a very high-class crook. I feel considerable satisfaction in beating him. About the time when you first found me here the case was looking all wrong and I was very blue, as you doubtless noticed. That accounts for some peculiarities of my manner which helped to mislead you. Well, I forgive you; yes, and thank you too, most heartily. To pass now from myself to the other person who has been under suspicion I will tell you that Erwin had had dealings with Kohnfeld, and the old 'fence' had advanced him money. He was forcing payment by means of documentary evidence of Erwin's many crimes; and he lost his life and the documents at the same time."

"Why didn't Erwin burn those things in his room?" I asked.

"He hadn't any stove," replied Dane. "There's only a grate. It was safer to hide them. Come, let's go and see him."

We were too late; Erwin had been removed to a hospital. He died within a few days.

I was never forced to tell the story which Dane had suggested. He secured my money for me and hushed up the whole affair.

Dane and I are closer friends than ever. I know he thinks less than nothing of my intellectual capacity, at least as applied to matters in his chosen field, but that need not affect his regard for me. Was not our old friend Wamba rewarded for his devotion? And he was a fool by right of descent, being the son of Witless, who was the son of an alderman.

BLIND TIGER

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 1.—Within the shadow of the courthouse in Charleston, a "blind tiger" is running in open defiance of the dispensary law, and though the state has arrested over 100 persons for violation of the law "no bill" was the return made on every case presented, by the grand jury. Members of the grand jury, it is charged, drink at the "tiger" near the courthouse, and Trial Justice Gaillard, who made affidavit that the grand jury refused to indict violators of the dispensary law, "through prejudice of caprice," has been recommended for removal from office.

In other portions of the state the law is being observed better, and since Judge Simonton's decree that all liquors imported for private use were exempt from seizure the law is being regarded with more favor by its former opponents. The state does not acquiesce in Judge Simonton's decision and Attorney General Barber has left for Washington to ask Justice Field for the release under habeas corpus, of three constables imprisoned by Judge Simonton for seizing liquors imported for personal use, pending an appeal to the supreme court on the merits.

Dead Body in a Box Car.

DELPHOS, O., July 1.—An old disused box car, which has stood on a side track here for four years, was opened, and the remains of a man found. The body was literally dried up, and there was nothing in his clothes to indicate who he was. There were no marks of violence on the body, and it is supposed he crawled in and committed suicide with some fatal drug after closing the door.

BAD SOLDIERS.

Over Fourteen Hundred Discharged Last Year.

By the New Army Regulations It Is Proposed to Punish Men Who Are Inefficient and Guilty of Minor Offenses by Dismissing Them.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—In the new army regulations it is proposed to adopt generally the rule of punishing men who are inefficient and guilty of minor offenses, by discharging them from the army service immediately. This rule prevails partially now. Adj.-Gen. Ruggles' last report shows that the loss of enlisted men during the year included about 1,080 discharged by general court-martial sentence and 354 for other causes.

Gen. Howard's report shows that there were forty-nine more general court-martial trials last year than the year before, an increase of forty-four in trials by all courts. He stated that a large proportion of these trials had been for "violations of articles of war which cover minor offenses. When the charges are accompanied by records of previous trials and convictions, these trials almost invariably result in the discharge from the service of the offender."

It was noted by the inspector of the department that the "number of men discharged by general court-martial indicates that incorrigible subjects are no longer tolerated in the ranks."

Gen. Howard adds the following comment: "In view of the fact that, as reported by the inspector, the number of discharged about equals the number lost to the service by purchase, and taking into consideration the great expense attending the convening of general court-martial, and the bringing of this class of offenders to justice, I am of the opinion that it would be in the interest of economy and in no way interfering with justice if such cases could be tried before garrison courts and the culprits discharged upon sentence after approval by the department commander."

Considerable attention has been given lately to the question whether it is not expedient to adopt a still more extensive policy of discharging men who are not valuable to the army, and who are brought up for offenses carrying terms of imprisonments as penalties. The chief reason for the consideration of this matter is that with the transfer of the Ft. Leavenworth military prison to the department of justice many more offenders will have to be taken care of by army posts than heretofore.

The idea that is to make the expense for the care of these men lighter, which causes the suggestion that it would be better to discharge as many of them as possible rather than to keep them in the guard house at the government's expense. Army officials say that it is not the primary purpose of the regulations to dismiss recruits that are offensive, but rather to keep in the ranks those men who are useful. The greater the number of worthless soldiers in imprisonment the fewer the vacancies for good recruits.

There are certain requirements that would have to be observed in carrying out such a policy, for while general government expressly insists that men who enlist are bound to keep their contract, and desertion is a serious offense, there are necessarily corresponding obligations on the government's part to retain throughout their enlistments men who reasonably attend to their duty.

Care has to be taken also not to encourage by frequent discharges of men charged with minor offenses, others to take this way of securing discharges that they might save to themselves the cost of purchasing discharges as provided for by law. If every man who committed a small offense were to be dropped from the army this would be a more popular way of getting out of the service than by the purchase of a discharge. It is expected that the matter will soon be permanently settled, with certain limitations.

A Trio of Insulting Street Beggars Before the Mayor—A Little $10 Mistake—Honey Pyles Gets Thirty Days—Scrappers, Drunks and Other Police Court Personages.

Street beggars were very much in evidence Saturday and Sunday, a gang evidently having struck the city some time Saturday. Their plan was to accost people on the street and ask for money to get something to eat. Some of them were very insulting and resented a refusal in a rude and insolent manner. Three of them were on the carpet in mayor's court this morning. John McCann, the first one arraigned, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to thirty days on the stone pile. He evidently signalled the other two and warned them of the fate awaiting them for they both pleaded not guilty. They answered to the names of James McGraw and Harry McMullen and their trials were set for Friday.

Honey Pyles, who has successfully fought off a regiment of persistent reptiles, who have given him a long and severe struggle, appeared in court this morning. The Mayor decided that thirty days on the stone pile would do him some good and he will give the prescription a trial.

Jordan Polly and Robert Bates were charged with disorderly conduct. A big cinder and the butt end of a billiard cue, the instruments used in their Saturday night festivities, were in evidence. Polly pleaded guilty and got $4 80 but Bates wanted a chance to prove his innocence and his hearing was set for Friday.

Charles Beckham, a bricklayer who boards on East Eighth street, had a fellow bricklayer who boards with him arrested this morning on the charge of stealing. Beckham claims to have missed $10 from his pocket and charged the stranger, a Mr. Kennedy, with taking it. Kennedy was searched, but no trace of the money was found, and several witnesses testified to his good character, he was released. His accuser was, however, locked up and held to answer to the charge of intoxication.

THE LADY OR THE TIGER?

A Peculiar Matrimonial Transaction in Covington in Which Some Otway People Figure.

Yesterday afternoon two couples registered at the Latonia hotel, Covington, as O. F. Reynolds and wife, J. F. Gordon and Annie Jackson, all of Otway, O. Mr. Reynolds asked where a marriage license could be procured. He was directed to Deputy Clerk "Linn" Hull, who resides at Fourth and Scott streets and the four left, saying that they would return some time in the evening. These four did not call on Mr. Hull, but two other couples did. One of the men said he was Frank Lohrman, of Philadelphia street, Covington, and asked for a license to wed Miss Emma Koenig, of Cincinnati. He asked where they could be married after getting the license and was directed to go to Rev. C. G. Jones, of Fourth Street Baptist church. It appears this couple did not call upon Mr. Jones, but four people did call upon Dr. Theodore N. Wise, of 25 East Fourth street, two of whom the doctor married. When asked for particulars Dr. Wise informed the reporter that the parties desired the matter kept secret in the meantime. He, however, said that the pair he married were from Muncie, Ind. This savors somewhat of a riddle. It appears that one couple at the hotel wanted to get a license, a second got the license and a third got married.—Cincinnati Tribune.

It is suspected that Dr. Gordon is the gentleman referred to in the above. He has had matrimonial ambitions for some time and was in this city last week making some very suspicious purchases. The best laid scheme, etc., doctor, sometimes fail, don't you know.

Mrs. Jennie Chambers Dead.

Mrs. Jennie Chambers, the lady whose serious illness was mentioned in Saturday's TIMES, died Sunday morning about 1 o'clock. She was in the prime of life and is remembered by Portsmouth people as a handsome, clever young woman, and had hosts of friends who will regret to hear of her death. She was a daughter of Joe Houston. The remains were buried today at 2 o'clock.

A Pair of Stray Pigeons.

Ben Leichner, of No 13 Fourteenth street, yesterday morning was the proud possessor of a pair of fantail pigeons, one snow white and the other a brown muffy with a white tail. Leichner was so proud of them he turned them out to see them fly. His wish was gratified for the pigeons flew off and have not been seen since. Now Leihner is offering a reward for any one who will return his pigeons.

Increase in Postoffice Receipts.

During the past few months there has been a big increase in the receipts of the postoffice, showing that business of this section is improving rapidly. During the quarter ending June 30 the receipts exceeded those of the corresponding quarter last year $967, while they were $425 more than the first quarter of the year.

OH, WHAT A RIDE!

Portsmouth Cycle Club Boys Go Up to Waverly and Have Lots of Fun Coming Back in the Rain.

Nine members of the Portsmouth Cycle club went to Waverly Sunday on their wheels. They left here early in the morning and returned sometime in the night, wet and completely worn out. They did not leave Waverly until late in the evening, thinking the rain would stop. But it only rained the harder and the boys had lots of fun. No accidents are recorded on the trip. Chas. Doerr's wheel became clogged up with mud and he was compelled to stop over at Rushtown for the night.

The boys would not have attempted to ride back could they have brought their wheels back on the N. & W. train. But that road still refuses to carry bicycles unless crated, and as the boys did not want to please the railroad company that much they determined to wheel it back. It is a very small policy now in force on the N. & W. in regard to carrying bicycles. All other roads carry them in the baggage car as ordinary baggage. But the N. & W. is quite a conservative institution.

ON THEIR BONDS

As Overturf's Appointment Was Illegal—Prominent Citizens Who May Have to Pay the $10,000—Good Showing in the Recorder's Office—Wedded in Court—Suit for Money—The Commissioners in Session—Minor Notes.

Suit has been commenced in common pleas court to recover the amount of the shortage of Jno. W. Overturf, depository of the water works funds, from the trustees who entrusted the money to his care, and their bondsmen. The public generally, is familiar with the case. The court recently held that Overturf's bondsmen were not liable. His appointment as custodian of the funds was illegal, and this made the trustees and their bondsmen liable. Acting on this decision this suit is now brought on the bonds of the trustees. The petitions recite at length the organization of the board, and the laws governing its powers and duties, and set out the illegality of the appointment of a custodian of the funds. It charges Overturf with appropriating to his own use $10,108 93 of the water works funds entrusted to his care, which amount has never been paid. There are four suits. In two of them the trustees, defendants, are charged with appropriating $100 to their own use, illegally, this amount being voted to themselves for extra work alleged to have been done, and being in addition to the $75 annual salary provided by ordinance. The two who are held for the additional $100 are Legrand Smith and C. S. Cadot.

The suits are as follows: City of Portsmouth against Trustee Wm. H. Angle and his bondsmen, Jacob C. Hibbs and James D. Clare, amount claimed $10,108.93, the amount of the shortage of Mr. Overturf; City of Portsmouth vs. John Dice and his bondsmen, Charles Wertz and A. T. Holcomb as administrator of Geo. Davis, amount claimed same as above; city vs. Cicero S. Cadot and his bondsmen, Jas. A. Maxwell, F. C. Searl, A. L. Sanford, Geo. Padan and James W. Bannon, amount claimed $10,208.93, being the amount of the shortage of Mr. Overturf and the extra $100; city vs Legrand Smith and his bondsmen, Wm. Moore and Jno. W. Overturf, amount claimed same as preceding suit. The suits are brought by City Solicitor Alex C. Woodrow and T. C. Anderson, Esq.

SUIT FOR MONEY.

Margaret Vogel vs. Barbara Daniel, Jacob Daniel and Katherine Binder is the title of a suit filed by Evans & Livingston. The plaintiff holds a claim of $150 for nursing and caring for Bertha Geser, who died Feb. 9, 1895, intestate, for the last eight months of her life.

The deceased owned two pieces of city property worth $1,270, but on January 16 deeded one piece worth $1,000 to the first named defendant. The plaintiff says that the deceased was weak in body and mind at the time and deeded the property under undue influence, and under the impression that it was to be sold by the defendant for the benefit of the deceased. The plaintiff asks that the transfer be set aside and that she be given judgment for the amount of her claim.

A GOOD SHOWING.

County Recorder Sikes makes a good showing for the fiscal year ending June 30th. His annual report to the secretary of state has not been compiled but some figures are obtainable. During the year there were 1,054 deeds recorded as against 913 for last year. There were 704 mortgages recorded as against 601 last year and about 500 mortgages released as against 360 last year.

The deputies in the several offices recently guessed on the number of deeds that would be recorded, their guesses being sealed and filed away. Deputy Auditor Shumway guessed the exact number, and Deputy Recorder Miss Sikes missed the mark the farthest and as a penalty will treat the county officials, their deputies and the newspaper men to ice cream this week.

WEDDED IN COURT.

C. B. Lawson applied in probate court this morning for a license to wed Susie Robinson. He brought the bride along with him, and it was decided to hold the wedding then and there. 'Squire Wm. Waller was summoned and performed the ceremony. A. B. Fuller, who chaperoned the couple, was the best man, and the several lady deputies were bride's maids.

THE COUNTY DADS.

The county commissioners met this afternoon in regular session. The session will probably be devoted entirely to routine business, approving bills, etc.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

ASCHE SELLS OUT

To Wm. C. Pendleton and Will Sail for Europe in a Few Weeks.

The negotiation between William Asche and W. C. Pendleton mentioned in THE TIMES a few days ago was closed this morning, Mr. Pendleton becoming the owner of Mr. Asche's saloon. Mr. Pendleton took possession to-day. Pendleton sold his interest in the Junction hotel property to his partner, Mr. Jordan. Mr. Asche will sail for Germany in a few weeks.

A Quick Trip.

Dan Davis and El Coriell rode home from Springfield Saturday. They left the latter city at four o'clock in the morning and got in here at five o'clock the same evening—pretty good time. A few miles out of Springfield Coriell took a hasty header, but was able to continue the journey.

RATHER ROCKY

Was That Game of Base Ball at the Fair Grounds Saturday—Chillicothe Wins Easily.

The game of base ball Saturday afternoon at New Boston, between the Chillicothes and a local club which was recently organized by an Ironton gentleman named Pratt, was not particularly interesting or exciting, and certainly far from being well played on either side. Of course the Chillicothes won. That was to be expected. It would be little short of miraculous for Portsmouth to have a winning club. All the same, however, it goes down awful hard with the ball fiends to have our ancient enemy "do" us in such an unmerciful manner as they did Saturday. A club that starts off by getting thumped to the tune of 18 to 12 the opening game cannot expect to receive the support of base ball lovers here or anywhere else.

The local team was a somewhat patched up aggregation, one or two star players not being in the game, owing to a misunderstanding with Manager Pratt. Then in the first inning Kelley was hit by a thrown ball and forced to go out of the game for a few innings. This necessitated a change about, and "Grummy" Lotel was put in to catch a few innings, while Davis went to third base. Kelley came back in the game in the fourth inning.

Both pitchers were hit hard and frequently, the fielders being kept on the jump all the time. The second Portsmouth man to the bat, Chas. Brooker, won the TIMES hat, knocking a clean home run. It batting the Chillicothe's had a little the best of it. In fact they out-played the home team at every point. The errors of the home team were particularly costly.

Manager Pratt had better take his club out and do a little practicing before he essays another game. If he should happen to buck up against a team like Maysville, his men might be chasing flies yet.

Marsh's Crushed Fruit.

J. I. Marsh's crushed fruit leads them all. It is a delicious drink, and is made from the natural fruit. No extracts are used. It will comply with the Ohio state law, and can be had at your grocers in this city.

We have been unable to ship up to the present time, owing to the large demand in the city, but now we propose to fill orders for picnics, and those who want the leading goods can get them by calling at the corner of Market and Front streets. I can furnish you with mineral waters, pints or quarts, just as you wish. Will pay special attention to picnics, and will take back goods that are not sold, though if it is a nice day you will not hardly order enough to supply the demand.

I have had nine years experience in this city and six years in Pennsylvania in the business, and you will find if you buy goods of me you will always find a sale for them. I make them so good that if you try one drink of pure pine apple you will want several more. And if you try the strawberry that was grown in Scioto county and the juice taken from them in Portsmouth, you will say "I never thought strawberry was so good before." The raspberry, fresh picked, made into sweet juice, put into bottles and sold by the dealers, is equally as fine. Apricot is an extra fine drink. It is a new drink, and is a favorite drink among the ladies, as well as among the gentlemen and children.

If you are going to have a picnic take some of the fruit along, and a hundred pounds of ice to keep it cold, and enjoy the 4th of July.

The Fiftieth Birthday Anniversary of Col. Floyd L. Smith.

The guests who assembled at the beautiful and cosy new home of Col. Floyd L. Smith, on East Second street, Saturday evening, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Col.'s birth numbered nearly as many as the mile stones the host has passed in life's journey. The company was one representative of the business and professional interest of the city, there to honor one of their number, one of the city's most progressive, successful, public spirited citizens. The event not only marked an important epoch in his life, but was the formal dedication and welcome of friends to the new home of the colonel and his estimable wife. The house has undergone a complete transformation, and with all modern appliances conducive to comfort, convenience and luxury, impressed the guest as an ideal home. An air of cordiality and hospitality prevailed, and possessed every arrival as he was greeted by the genial host and hostess. After enjoying cigars on the front porch the guests were called in and seated at the dozen card tables. Before the game was started there was a lull in the proceedings. Mr. John Warner took the floor, and in a short speech reviewed briefly the Col.'s active business life and stated that his friends recognizing that he needed rest had decided to present him with something that very beautifully suggested rest and made its enjoyment an irresistable temptation. At this point the eyes of the much surprised victim were directed to a handsome large leather upholstered chair, a token of the respect and high esteem of the friends present.

The Colonel very gracefully accepted the compliment, and the chair, and promised from now on to use it quite frequently.

The game—progressive euchre—was then started and continued until about eleven o'clock, Mrs. Smith, who was assisted by Mrs. John E. Jones and Mrs. Harry S. Grimes, scored the games and looked after the pleasure of the players generally.

Fruit punch was served during the evening and after the playing ceased a delicious lunch was enjoyed. J. Leigh Watkins scored the most games and was awarded a handsome silver mounted cane. Cigars were lighted and the time until midnight spent in very pleasent informal conversation, and when the guests departed it was with the memory of a most delightful evening and with best wishes for their popular and genial entertainers.

This will be Gorgeous.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Foresters to arrange for the big outing and banquet described by Saturday's issue, met in Dr. Davidson's office Saturday night.

Mr. J. W. Dodge was made chairman of the committee, and Mr. John Berg, secretary. Sub committees were appointed on invitation, reception, printing, grounds, etc. Dr. T. F. Davidson was appointed a committee of one to invite all secretaries, the board of trade and all city officials to take part in the big parade.

And Ella Came Back.

Ella Martin, whose home is in this city, but who has been in Columbus for some time past, was received at the county infirmary Friday, having been sent there by the Columbus poor authorities. It seems that Ella has been loving not very wisely as the saying goes and is now in a delicate condition. Hence her retirement to the infirmary.
